During the morning the pontiff participated in the celebration of mass. The ceremony was held in the chapel adjoining the sick chamber, Monsignor Mazoni being the celebrant. The door connecting the sick room with the chapel was opened so that his holiness might follow the service. He insisted that Dr. Lapponi and his valet. Centra, should leave his side, and enter the chapel in order to better hear the mass.

The history of the day has been comparatively uneventful. The pontiff had several hours repose, Dr. Laptered injections to him once of digitalis to strengthen the heart, and once patient's growing depression. An All the Year Round Disease.

Rheumatism does not come and go with winter time always; in fact some suffer more during the Spring and Summer than at any other season. When the blood is charged with Uric Acid, Alkali and other irritating poisons, then the system is in the right condition for Rheumatism to develop, and an attack is liable to come at any time, Winter or Summer. Rheumatism, because it attacks different parts of the body, and is sudden or slow in its action, is gives various names such as acute and chronic, muscular, articular, inflammatory, mercurial and sciatic, but it is the same old acid blood that causes all. Some are

After being terribly crippled for three years with Rheumatism, and having tried well known remedies I heart and ends suddenly and fatally.

It won't do to let Rheumatism run on. It is a dangerous disease, and you can never tell where it is going to strike. Home remedies, plasters, liniments and such things as produce counter-irritation, are soothing and may relieve the pain temporarily, but the polluted, acid blood cannot be reached by external applications.

Rheumatism must be treated through the blood, and no remedy brings such prompt and lasting relief as S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the blood, neutralizes the acids, and removes all irritating poisons and effete matter from the system. S. S. S. strengthens and enriches the thin acid blood, and, as it circus lates through the body, the corroding, gnawing poisons and acid deposits are dislodged and washed out of the muscles and joints, and the sufferer is happily relieved from the discomforts and misery of Rheumatism.

CROPS IN JUNE DID NOT MAKE | Lightning did little damage in Ken GOOD SHOWING.

The report of the commissioner of agriculture, Mr. I. B. Nall, as to the Cassna, the son of Sam Cessna, a farconditions of crops at the close of June shows that the conditions during the month were not favorable generally for the crops in Kentucky. The cool rains the first part of the month were a hindrance to farm work, and retarded the growth of tobacco, corn and garden truck. Corn was planted late, but nearly the usual area was planted. In some sections, however, it was not possible for it to be given the required attention, and on this account there will be little improvement in the crop over that of the previous month. The vield in wheat was disappointing, while the quality was much below that of former years. Oats and barley are not changed materially in condition since last month, while rve is worse than it then was. Hemp will probably improve during July. Fruit tle at Paint Lick, Garrard county. OUR NEW CONGRESSMAN.

Congressman Ollie James, in advance of his initiation to congress, has had himself interviewed in Washington. Mr. James is probably the biggest man who ever represented Kentucky in the national assemblyin some ways. But about his interview, it is a peach. He says: "We ting in good shape for a victory next year, and the question of candidates is secondary." If Mr. James or any other Democrat feels that way now he is destined to feel foolish later on. The Democratic party never did stand less show to win, and any Democrat who can overcome his partisan prejudices long enough to take a sensible view of it knows it.

But that isn't the extent of Congressman James' unequaled omniscience. He declares that in order to win "it will be necessary for us to get tucky are good, and it is hoped that together." How wonderful for the every Republican in the state will new congressman from Kentucky to have too much common sense and too have found it out! Congressman James' peroration, "There is nothing left to do but turn the robbers out," is a marvel of childlike confidence. No, there is nothing left but to "turn them out," and evidently Mr. James intends to do it when he brightens the house of representatives with his beaming, inspiring countenance at the next session of congress. Mr. James is manifestly a great man—the greatest Kentucky ever had in congress-and should be nominated for president on the strength of his unequaled interview, if for no other reason. A man with so much perspicuity and such a quick, penetrating knowledge of men, parties and conditions should never be permitted to shed his lustrous intellect in the mouldy halls of congress. BOLD HIGHWAYMEN

TRIED TO FRIGHTEN A SUP-POSED COWARD LAST NIGHT.

Several well known young men who are spending a few days in the country decided yesterday to play a joke on another young man who has always been considered somewhat timid and not likely to stand under fire. He was to come out with a companion last night after dark, and the plan was for his companion to tell him ghost stories and pretend to be afraid on account of the darkness on the way, and when they reached a certain lonely spot in the road the young men from the house were to spring out and yell, "Halt! Money or your life." The supposed timid young man's companion was then to duck and run and leave the other to escape from the highwaymen the best way he could. They expected his supplications to be spared and not murdered would be very amusing.

Everything worked beautifully. The Timid Man was worked up into a good state of apprehension by the blood curdling narratives of his treacherous companion on their way The deputy jailer put the men back from the car line to the house. When the proper place was reached, the young men from the house jumped out and played the part of brigands. Their confederate who had accompanied the Timid Man out the deserted road carried out his part of the program by running, and doubtless ex- day and cannot live long the doctors pected the other to do likewise, but I e

Several days ago George W. Taylor, who is in jail for forgery, had a bad hemmorrhage and was taken out of corridor. His cell companion, Sidney Aubrey, who is in jail for breaking into the wharfboat, was permitted to act as his attendant. Both men had been given the freedom of the corridors three days Saturday night and when Deputy Jailer Rudolph went to close up he noticed on the northwest wing of the building, up stairs, a pair of pants and shirt hung carelessly over a corner of the window.

The clothes had not been arranged carefully enough, however, to hide a small hole that aroused the deputy's suspicions and an examination showed a large hole in the wall, large enough to admit the form of one man easily, and everything was evidently in readiness for the escape. The bricks had piece of wire, and had been placed back in position to avert suspicion. into the cell and sent for a brick mason,, Mr. E. Augustus, who today re paired the hole.

Police Commissioners Will Hold Their Meeting This Evening

One Says They Cannot Enforce the Law Until They Know Officially it Is a Law.

MUCH POLITICS MIXED IN

The board of police and fire commissioners are to hold their regular meeting tonight, at the city hall and may fill a vacancy on the police force occasioned by the resignation of Officer John Hovious, and one in the South Side fire department occasioned by the resignation of Stationman John Mc-

The committee of the Good Government league that called on Mayor Yeiser Saturday relative to the 10:30 clos ing law has been invited to be present and will doubtless be on hand. The board was called to meet Saturday night but failed to meet because the members were all busy and could not

In regard to the 10:30 closing law the commissioners do not appear to think anything will be done with it at present. They say that while they do not profess to be lawyers, they are year. wise enough to know that officials know what the court of appeals decides only when they get the mandate of the court. That the mandate of the court of appeals has not arrived in the 10:30 closing case, and they have no right to, and would not attempt to enforce the law until they are notified officially by the court of appeals, through the mandate, what the law

One said this morning that the board had already issued instructions to the chief of police to order all laws enforced, and that that was as far as their authority went. As to what the laws are, that is something the commissioners are not expected to keep track of. They are not appointed to decide what is the law and notify the police officers that it is law. That the chief of police, Marshal Crow, will doubtless be guided by what is right and proper and order enforced the laws when they are laws, as city offiials are usually guided by the advice of as good atttorneys as anyone else.

Owing to the absence of Commissicner Pete Rogers the board may not fill any of the vacancies tonight. Judging from the talk of the commissioners, who were appointed by Mayspecial excursion, leaving Paducah at they do not take very kindly to the

There is already talk of bringing in an ordinance in the boards to repeal the 10:30 ordinance as soon as an effort is made to enforce it. Some of the members of the council, it is claimed, voted for the law on the supposition it would be declared unconstitutional, and are anxious now to vote for a repeal, while no trouble is anticipated in getting a repeal through the board of aldermen.

"13" AT THE WHITE HOUSE

PRESIDENT'S NEW WEDGEWOOD DINNER RECALLS INSTANCES OF HOODOO NUMBER.

To those who are influenced by the old superstition of sitting down to table 13 in number, an invitation from the president to dine at the White House off the new state service of chins, manufactured by the famous firm of Wedgwood, may well be looked at askance. Whether intentionally or by accident, the mystic number is curiously repeated in the crest, and even in the transaction by which the service was ordered. Any one who visits the St. Louis exposition may observe the former, as the service is to be placed, there on view. / To begin with, there are, of course, 13 stars and 13 bars in the shield, representing the original 13 states of the union. In one claw the eagle clasps 13 boits and in the other an olive branch upon which there are 13 leaves and 13 berries. The pinions of the eagle, too, have 13 feathers, and it will be found that there are 13 letters in the motto "E Pluribas Unum." Further, there are 13 letters in the Christian names of the president and his wife-Theodore and Annie-and 13 letters also in Staffordshire, the county in England in which the Wedgewood ware is manufactured, but perhaps the most significant fact of all in this respect is that the service was delivered on Friday, the 13th of February, of this

There are many places in the country of the Northern Pacific, some inexpensive, others better and more expensive, where one can spend the summer days? pleasantly and healthfully. Among these are Walker in the Leech lake country, and Detroit and Battle Lake in the Lake Park region in Minnesota; Eaton's ranch, near Medora, N. D.; Hunter's Het Springs! in the Yellowstone valley, and Missoula and the Bitter-root valley in Montana; Lakes Pend d'Oreille and Cour d'Alene, Idaho; North Yakima in Eastern Washington, and Green River Hot Springs in the Cascades; Tacoma, Seattle, Port Townsend, Port Angeles and Victoria on Puget Sound, and many places along the Columbia river and ou the Pacific Ocean from Fortland as a center.

Those east of the Mississippi who wish a decided change should go to the Rockies or the Puget Sound and Columbia river and sea coast country. We can only hint at these things here, but write us giving particulars as near as you can, and we will try to give you the needed information to enable you to find what you want. "I never tave told you the extent o' my dealin's," went on Bishop in the current of confession. "I never even told Perkins yesterday. Fust an' last was so bad." I've managed to rake in fully twenty thousand acres o' mountain land. I "But I was jest a-thinkin' in thar. was goin' on what I 'lowed was a dead You've got a powerful good friend in shore thing. I secured all I could lay Rayburn Miller. He's the sharpest my hands on, an' I did it in secret. I was afeerd even to tell you about what you, I'd see him an' lay the whole thing Perkins said, thinkin' it mought leak before him. He'll be able to give you out an' sp'ile my chances."

"I got it up"-Bishop's face was doggedly pale, almost defiant of his overwhelming disaster-"I mortgaged this farm to get money to buy Maybry and Morton's four thousand acres."

"The farm you was going to deed to Alan?" gasped his wife. "You didn't include that?"

"Not in that deal," groaned Bishop. "I swapped that to Phil Parsons fer his poplar an' cypress belt."

The words seemed to cut raspingly into the silence of the big room. Abner Daniel was the only one who seemed unmoved by the confession. He filled his pipe from the bowl on the mantelpiece and pressed the tobacco down with his forefinger; then he kicked the ashes in the chimney till he uncovered a small live coal. He eyed it for a moment, then dipped it up in the shovel, rolled it into his pipe and began to smoke.

"So I ain't a-goin' to git no yeerly pass over the new road," he said, his object being to draw his brother-inlaw back to Perkins' action in the mat-

"Perkins was a-lyin' to me," answered Bishop. "He hain't admitted it yet, but he was a-lyin'. His object was to he'p the Tompkins sell out fer a decent price, but he can't be handled. He's got me on the hip."

"No," said Abner. "I'd ruther keep on swappin' gold dollars fer mountain land an' lettin' it go fer taxes 'an to try to beat a lawyer at his own game. A courthouse is like the devil's abode, easy to git into, no outlet an' nothin' but seorch while you are thar."

"Hush, fer the name o' goodness!" cried Mrs. Bishop, looking at her husband. "Don't you see he's dyin' from Are you all a-goin' to kill 'im? What does a few acres o' land ur debts amount to beside killin' a man 'at's been tryin' to help us all? Alfred.

it ain't so mighty awful. You know it ain't! What did me an' you have when we started out but a log house boarded up on the outside, an' now we've got our childern educated an' all of us in good health. I raflly believe it's a sin agin God's mercy fer us to moan an' fret under a thing like this."

"That's the talk," exclaimed Abner Daniel enthusiastically. "Now you are gittin' down to brass tacks. I've always contended"-

"For God's sake, don't talk that way!" said Bishop to his wife. "You don't mean a word of it. You are jest a-sayin' it to try to keep me from seein' what a fool I am."

"You needn't worry about me, father," said Alan firmly. "I am able to look out for myself and for you and mother. It's done, and the best thing to do is to look at it in a sensible way. Besides, a man with 20,000 acres of mountain land paid for is not broken by a long jump."

"Yes, I'm gone," said Bishop, a wavering look of gratitude in his eye as he turned to his son. "I figured on it all last night. I can't pay the heavy interest an' come out. I was playin' for big stakes an' got left. Thar's nothin' to do but give up. Me buyin' so much land has made it rise a little, but when I begin to try to sell I won't be able to give it away."

"Thar's some'n in that," opined Abner Daniel as he turned to leave the room. "I reckon I mought as well go haul that tan bark. I reckon you won't

"I thought of him," said Alan, "but I am a little afraid he will think we want to borrow money, and he never lets out a cent without the best security.'

"Well, you needn't be afeerd on that score," laughed the old man as he reached up on the high wagon seat for his whip. "I once heerd 'im say that business an' friendship wouldn't mix any better'n oil an' water."

CHAPTER V.

HE following Saturday Alan went to Darley, as he frequently did, to spend Sunday. On such visits he usually stayed at the Johnston House, a great, old fashloned brick building that had survived the civil war and remained untouched by the shot and shell that hurtled over it during that dismal period when most of the population had "refugeed farther south." It had four stories and was too big for the town, which could boast of only 2,000 inhabitants, one-third of whom were black. However, the smallness of the town was in the hotel's favor, for in a place where no one would have patronized a second class hotel opposition would have died a natural death. The genial proprietor and his family were of the best, blood, and the Johnston House was a sort of social clubhouse where the church people held their affairs and the less serious element gave dances. To be admitted to the hotel without having to pay for one's dinner was the hallmark of social approval. It was near the ancient looking brick car shed, under which the trains of two main lines ran, and a long freight by the undergrowing roots of the sycamore trees that edged the streets. In the office of the hotel, just after registering his name, Alan met his friend Rayburn Miller, for whose business ability, it may be remembered. Abner Daniel had such high regard. He was a fine looking man of thirtythree, tall and of athletic build. He warehouse of the same date and architecture. Around the hotel were clustered the chief financial enterprises of the town-its stores, postoffice, banks and a hall for theatrical purposes. Darley was the seat of its county, and another relic of the days before the war was its courthouse. The principal sidewalks were paved with brick, which in places were damp and green and sometimes raised above their common level

had dark eyes and hair and a ruddy, outdoor complexion. "Hello!" he said cordially. "I thought you might get in today, so I came round to see. Sorry you've taken a room. I wanted you to sleep with me tonight. Sister's gone, and no one is there but the cook. Hello, I must be careful. I'm drumming for business right under Sanford's nose." "I'll make you stay with me to make up for it," said Alan as the clerk behind the counter laughed good naturedly over the allusion to himself.

"Blamed if I don't think about it." said Miller. "Come round to the office. I want to talk to you. I reckon you've got every plow going such weather as this."

"Took my horse out of the field to drive over." said Alan as they went out and turned down to a side street where there was a row of law offices, all two roomed buildings, single storied, built of brick and bearing battered tin signs. One of these buildings was Miller's, which, like all its fellows, had its door wide open, thus inviting all the lawyers in the "row" and all students of law to enter and borrow books or use the ever open desk. Rayburn Miller was a man among ten thousand in his class. Just after being graduated at the state university he was admitted to the bar and took up the practice of law. He could undoubtedly have made his way at this alone, had not other and more absorbing talents developed within him. Having had a few thousand dollars left him at his father's death, he began to utilize this capital in "note shaving" and other methods of turning over money for a handsome profit furnished by the unsettled conditions, the time and locality. He soon became an adept in many lines of speculation, and as he was remarkably shrewd and cautious accumulated quite a fortune. "Take a seat," he said to Alan as they went into the office, and he threw himself into the revolving chair at his littered desk. "I want to talk to you. suppose you are in for some fun. The boys are getting up a dance at the hotel, and they want your dollar to help pay the band. It's a good one this time. They've ordered it from 7:35. Got a match?' Alan had not, and Miller turned his nead to the open door. An old negro happened to be passing, with an ax on his shoulder.

"Heigh, there, Uncle Ned!" Miller called out.

The negro and passed, but he heard his name called, and he came back and looked in at the door.

"Want me, Marse Rayburn?" "Yes, you old scamp. Get me a match or I'll shoot the top of your head off."

"All right, suh; all right, Marse Ray

"You ought to know him," said Miller, with a smile as the negro hurried into the adjoining office. "His wife cooks for Colonel Barclay. He might tell you if Miss Dolly's going tonight, but I know she is. Frank Hillhouse checked her name off the list, and I heard him say she'd accepted. By the way, that fellow will do to watch. I think he and the colonel are pretty

"Will you never let up on that?" Alan asked, with a flush.

"I don't know that I shall," laughed Rayburn. "It seems so funny to see given. you in love, or, rather, to see you think you are."

"I have never said I was," said Alan sharply. "But you show it so blamed plain," said Miller.

"Here 'tis, Marse Rayburn. Marse Trabue said you could have a whole box ef you'd put up wid sulphur ones." Miller took the matches from the outstretched hand and tossed a cigar to Alan. "Say, Uncle Ned," he asked, "do you know that gentleman?" indicating Alan with a nod of his head. A quizzical look dawned in the old negro's eyes, and then he gave a resounding guffaw and shook all over. "I reckon I know his hoss, Marse Rayburn," he tittered. "That's a good one on you, Alan," laughed Miller. "He knows your 'hoss." I'll have to spring that on you when I see you two together." As the negro left the office Mr. Trabue leaned in the doorway, holding his battered silk hat in his hand and mopping his perspiring face. He nodded to Alan and said to Mil ler, "Do you want to write?"

"Not any more for you, thanks," said Miller. "I have the backache now from those depositions I made out for you yesterday."

"Oh, I don't mean that," the old lawyer assured him, "but I had to borrow yore ink just now, an', seein' you at yore desk, I thought you might need it."

"Oh, if I do," jested Miller, "I can buy another bottle at the bookstore, They pay me a commission on the ink I furnish the row. They let me have it cheap by the case. What stumps me is that you looked in to see if I needed You are breaking the rule, Mr. Trabue. They generally make me hunt for my office furniture when I need it. They've borrowed everything I have except my iron safe. Their ignorance of the combination, its weight and their confirmed laziness are all that saved it." When the old lawyer had gone, the two friends sat and smoked in silence for several minutes. Alan was studying Miller's face. Something told him that the news of his father's disaster had reached him and that Miller was going to speak of it. He was not mistaken, for the lawyer soon broached the subject.

"I've been intending to ride out to see you almost every day this week," he said, "but business has always pre vented my leaving town." Then you have heard"-

"Yes, Alan, I'm sorry, but it's all as wanted. over the country. A man's bad luck spreads as fast as good war news. I heard it the next day after your father returned from Atlanta, and saw the whole thing in a flash. The truth is, Perkins had the cheek to try his scheme on me. I'm the first target of every scoundrel who has something to sell, and I've learned many of their tricks. I didn't listen to all he had to say, but got rid of him as soon as I could. You must not blame the old man. As I see it now, it was a most plausible scheme, and the shame of it is that no one can be handled for it. Your father will have to grin and bear it. He really didn't pay a fabulous price for the land, and if he were in a condition to hold on to it for, say, twenty-five years he might not lose money. But who can do that sort of thing? I have acres and acres of mountain land offered me at a much lower figure, but what little money I've made has been made by turning my capital rapidly. Have you seen

Dolly since it happened?" "No; not for two weeks," replied Alan. "I went to church with her Sunday before last and have not seen her since. I was wondering if she had beard about it."

"Oh, yes; she's heard it from the colonel. It may surprise you, but the $1,950. thing has rubbed him the wrong way." "Why I don't understand," exclaimed lan. "Has be"-

"The old man has had about 2,000 $900. acres of land over near your father's purchases, and it seems that he was closely watching all your father's deals and, in spite of his judgment to the contrary, Mr. Bishop's confidence in that sort of real estate has made him put a higher valuation on his holdings over there. So you see, now that your father's mistake is common talk, he is forced to realize a big slump, and he wants to blame some one for it. I don't know but that your father or some one else made him an offer for his land, which he refused. So you see it is only natural for him to be disgruntled."

"I see," said Alan. "I reckon you heard that from Miss Dolly?" Miller smoked slowly. _

Finally, growing desperate. Duffy threw can and all over to third base, from which Mothird baseman hurled the can inclosing the ball to the catcher and the latter touched the runner out with it.

There was a loud protest from the Cleveland nine, and the umpire final ly decided that McAleer was safe and the run must count, because the rules provide that the runner must be touched by the ball.

A LITTLE DOPE.

Lon Hedges, who has been out with the Jackson team, returned yesterday Rocks at Wallace park yesterday with them and on application at the depot found his pass to Milwaukes here and left today at noon for Minne- the game was a fast one for amateurs. apolis where he will pitch his first game. Hedges has many friends here who will be pleased to see him win out. Theatrical Notes.

One of the most striking ensemble numbers introduced in Lew Dockstader's new minstrel show represents a levee scene entitled "Moonlight on the Mississippi." It is the work of Cole and Johnson Brothers, the gifted composers cf"The Congo Love Song," "Under the Bamboo Tree," and other big hits of the day. Another novel idea is a transformation scene, which NEWS is the setting for a song by Horwitz and Bowers, entitled the "Story of the Sunflower," which is sung by Manuel Romaine. The climax of the song shows the entire stage radiant with the wild beauty of a thousand

The Seward Show is going to make 381 tonight a ladies' free event and ladies 372 will be admitted free when accompanied by either lady or gentleman with a paid ticket. This offer is made by Mr. Seward as a compliment to the ladies for past favors and as there is no restriction as to the number of free and Rutledge. Second game, Cairo tickets sold, or the hour when they are purchased, the Casino should be too small to hold its audience tonight. No game was scheduled yesterday The play for tonight is the beautiful story of "In Illinois."

> The indications are that all the members of the "Faust" company will go to Fulton with the company Wednesday night. Thus far none have signified their inability to go down with the company, and a large house and first class performance is meeting at Mrs. Thompson's, on Jefferson street, to make arrange.

Wilson will probably go to Hopkinsville to pitch. Wilson has played ten games in the Owensboro and Paducah teams and lost but one. He pitched six games here winning four, tieing one and losing a practice game at Jack son. At Owensboro he won every game he pitched.

Mr. Joe Bishop, who has been play ing excellent amateur baseball, left today for Vicksburg, Miss., to work. His many friends here will regret to learn of his departure. He is about the best amateur catcher here and was

By "X-Rays." Just for once won't you try a pair of shoes that are not made from guesswork measurements of what your foot ought to be, but from "X-ray" photographs of what women's feet really are? The " Dorothy Dodd" Shoe is exactly shaped to the bones, muscles, and ligaments of the foot, as they are plainly revealed by "X-ray" photograph. This is the explanation of why you hear so much talk on all sides about the wonderful "Fit of a 'Dorothy Dodd." The shoe deserves its popular nickname of "an arrangement in comfort." But all this is of no help to you unless you own a pair. On the day you buy them you will learn a new lesson in Foot Comfort. After that, no one can sell you any other shoe but a "Dorothy Dodd."
